

Psychology Class
Spring Semester 2012
Dr. Buzz Inboden

Welcome to Psychology class. This class will provide a very basic overview of the field of psychology.

This textbook is a secular textbook and is an introductory, college-level text. While the author is a Christian who teaches at Hope College, which is a Christian college, there are still things in the book that some might find objectionable. We use the text as a source of information, and a basis for discussion. As we analyze the text and compare it to what the Bible teaches we will find areas of harmony and disagreement. This type of analysis will provide good practice for college. The process will create an interesting intellectual and spiritual challenge for us.

The class will have reading assignments, quizzes, unit tests and a paper/project. Reading assignments will be designed to take no more than ½ hour.
Overall, students should count of having to invest, on average, about ½ hour per day outside of class in order to be successful.

Textbooks will need to be covered. Thanks for tending to this before next Monday.

Here is how the grading will be based on total points earned.

There will be a final project.

All assignments will be posted on Renweb and on the “Intro to Psychology Class” page on www.drbuzz.org. Call or email if you have questions. Follow the link to the “Intro to Psych” page. If you don’t understand the assignment, see me, or email or call – ahead of time!
